1. INTRODUCTION

The CoJ as a local authority recognizes its shared obligations, inter alia, to assist affected persons who might be rendered homeless temporarily or indefinitely because of one or more criteria constituting emergencies. In recognizing this shared responsibility. The main primary purpose of this project is to address emergency housing assistance on a temporary basis. The Emergency Housing Programme and the role of local authorities in emergencies that lead to homelessness have over the years received significant attention through various constitutional court judgments such as the Joe Slovo and Blue Moonlight cases, and others. In line with the City's policy, this project aims to implement an emergency housing response thereby enabling the CoJ to respond to a plethora of emergency housing situations.

The CoJ has over the years primarily dealt with emergency situations through its Emergency Management Services department. The focus of EMS has been to respond to emergencies consisting in disasters as provided for in the Disaster Management Act (No. 57 of 2002) and the CoJ Disaster Risk Management Policy. The relief provided by EMS is often limited to emergency assistance for a period of up to 72 hours. During this period different aids would be provided to give support to and make the affected persons' situation more bearable. Where affected persons are rendered homeless resulting from the disaster, they often are provided with shelter in the form of tents, accommodation in community centres et cetera.

It is important to note the ambit of Emergencies has been significantly extended in the text of the EHP and includes, inter alia, floods, earthquakes, sinkholes, hail, snow, strong winds, severe rainstorms, evictions, house demolitions as well as household and communities living in dangerous conditions such as under power lines and on dolomitic land. Often these affected persons remain homeless temporarily or indefinitely after having received some form of initial assistance from EMS and are required to be accommodated. These affected persons then become the prerogative of the Housing department. Whereas the EHP has prescribed responses with options of applying for funding when dealing with Emergencies, the CoJ has experienced several challenges in endeavouring to adopt and implement these responses, particularly within the inner city where there is the highest demand for TEA and where there is little or no available land. To this end, the City will have to primarily rely on, and utilise its own resources to provide TEA for affected persons in the inner city. This type of temporary assistance offered by the CoJ does not detract from its overall responsibility as a municipality in terms of the Constitution and Housing Act, does not promote queue jumping and is limited to temporary assistance in Emergencies.

All queries in connection with this document are to be submitted in writing to:

7.4 Risk Tolerance

The JDA has adopted a Risk Tolerance Framework (RTF) which enjoins the JDA to consider its risk exposure to contractors / service providers in terms of the number of contracts awarded to a single contractor / service provider in a particular year.

In terms of the Risk Tolerance Framework, the JDA determines the risk exposure as excessive in instances where the value of the contracts for individual professional service providers (eg. project managers / engineers / quantity surveyors / consultants) is either :

1. The greater of R8 million or four contracts / projects in the current financial year or
2. The greater of R12 million or six contracts / projects over two financial years (current year and previous financial year)

And in instances where the value of contracts for multi-disciplinary professional service providers (eg. more than one discipline / service is provided by the same bidder) is either :

3. The greater of R12 million or six contracts / projects in the current financial year or
4. The greater of R20 million or nine contracts / projects over two financial years (current year and previous financial year)

A risk analysis shall be undertaken on the bidder with the highest number of points obtained, to determine whether the tenderer does not exceed the JDA's risk framework criteria as stated above. In other words, whether it falls within the ambit of the Risk Tolerance Framework as acceptable.

JDA reserves the right to award a contract to a bidder who has exceeded the threshold as stated above.
